

MADE TO MOVE EXHIBITION BRINGS ART TO DIVERSE COMMUNITIES

||| (3-art) is excited to announce that Made to Move, a traveling exhibition of small art works by over 20 American artists, will tour the United States and be installed in a variety of unexpected or non-traditional spaces throughout 2012. The exhibition is designed to take art out of its institutional settings and reach a variety of underserved communities interested in learning more about contemporary art. In addition to experiencing art-works close up, viewers will be able to learn about the artists, their lives, and the inspiration behind their work.

Each artist contributed to the exhibition an artwork measuring five inches or smaller. Made to Move is a representative cross-section of the art world today, and combines portability with diverse media, topical issues, and wide-ranging approaches to art making. All of the Made to Move installations will be documented on www.3-art.org/currentprojects/madetomove, which also includes visits to artists' studios, links to their work, and interviews about their processes. The curators' goal is to bring art — and the ideas behind it — to communities that might not otherwise have access to it.

Participating artists include:

Megan Abajian, Todd Antonellis, Karen Aqua, Maria Carlassare, Francois De Costerd, Molly Dilworth, Abigail Doan, Jennifer Fuchel, Leah Gauthier, Abigail Knowlton Israelson, Faith Johnson, Sara Jones, Nate Kassel, Darren Miller, Sara Pearce, Elke Pessel, Karen Rosenkrantz, Liz Shepherd, Mara Sprafkin, Betsy Stirratt, Laura Torres, Ben Valentine, Pietro Valbuena, Andrea Wenglowskyj, Karla Wozniak

If you are interested in hosting Made to Move, please contact info@3-art.org. We would like to reach audiences of all ages, and we are open to leading discussions as well as project-based responses to the work.

The Made to Move touring schedule is as follows:

February-May 2012: Midwest: Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio, etc.

May-August 2012: East Coast: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Washington, D.C., Massachusetts, etc.

August-December 2012: TBA

A full schedule of Made to Move's tour dates will be announced on www.3-art.org/currentprojects/madetomove